POETRY. TRUE NOBILITY.

What is wolle to the first of inherit Wealth, estate and proud degree?
There must be some higher merit,
Higher yet than these for me.
Something greater far must enter
Into life's majestic span,
Fitted to create and center
True nobility in man!

What is noble? 'Tis the finer What is noble? Tis the finer
Portions of our mind and heart,
Linked to something still diviner
Than mere language can impart.
Ever prompting, ever seeing
Some improvement yet to plan,
To uplife our fellow being,
And like man, to feel for man!

What is noble? Is the saber Nobler than the humble spade? There's a dignity in labor Finer than e'er pomp arrayed.
He who seeks the world's improvemen
Aids the word in alding mind; Every great commanding movement Serves not one but all mankind!

AGRICULTUBAL.

Planting Tobacco.

The tobacco plant requires usually 100 days from the time it is transplanted to grow and ripen thoroughly. To secure the best results, therefore, the planting should not be earlier than the 10th of May, and if possible not later than the 20th of June. In the one case the plant is likely to be stunted in its early growth, as well as deprived of the dews of Angust and September; and in the other there is danger that it may not have time to mature more fully before frost. The plants are set very much as cabbage plants are, by inserting them to the bud and pressing the earth well to their roots and stems with a peg. A plant is said to be properly planted when the point of a leaf breaks off Printing Office. in the attempt to pull it up.

The plants should never be permitted to wilt before they are set. If this cannot be done as fast as they are drawn from the bed, as many as can be planted in a single day should be drawn while the dew is on them, and kept until needed in shady place with tops being occasionally sprinkled with water.

If the hills have been put up with good season in them, they can ordinarily at any time in May be planted without a rain, if done late in the afternoon. They should be cut down to one-half their height or a little lower if the season is light the back of the hoe, which clapping preserves the moisture, and prevents crumbling of the earth after the planting peg, and should be lighter or harder according to the dampness

Raising Watermelons.

The raising of watermelons as home market crop, is profitable in the neighborhood of all towns and villages. Its cultivation for Northern markets in Eastern Carolina, is increasing every year, and is found to be a profitable crop. We give the following excellent plan of raising watermelons in practice by a Mississippi gardener, extracted from Our Home Journal."

"A Mississippi gardener adopts the following practice in his succesplace was ordinary pine and post oak land, of moderate fertility; and after plowing 'flush' he laid it off in rows twenty feet each way, and at the angles or checks where the rows crossed he dug a hole with a spade two feet deep and three or four in diameter, and filled it with well-rotted manure of any kind he could get to make a good compost, and planted his seeds on four sides of his hill, so that he could thin out and then, as the vines ran out he trained each vine to occupy its own side of the hill, and as the main vine was taken up to the barn to see put out side runners, he pinched off some sheep, and after looking at the end of the runner as soon as it had one melon on it, and so on with each successive runner, until there were five or six melons on each vine. His cultivation consisted in pulling out the weeds and grass from the hill, sand a retring the hills with A. D liquid manure in the evening. He did not disturb the grass or weeds that grew between the hills, as he considered them a protection to the vines in hot weather. The result was such that I have seen him bring in an ox cart load at a time (I think it was the first of the season), and I belped eat one that weighed 80 pounds, and he sold them all at two in the cart that weighted less than pass in any manner upon our lands, or to emove anything whatever from the land unless first having permission from the nudersigned. dent some day." Medical Men, Mechanics and Operators all recommend the famous for the following reasons: It is the Lightest running.

Domestic Sewing Machine,

It is the most noiseless. It is the simplest and best made machine. Its tension is elastic, so it breaks no thread. It carries a larger bobbin and more thread than any other machine. t winds the bobbin without running the machine or throwing off the driving band. It is made with Concentric motions and

The DOMESTIC has gone far ahead of all other machines in all the cities of the United States, and has never before been offered in competition with cheap machines.
